Dr. Wise Talks on Vision Before Large Uniontown Audience

A large audience assembled last night in the Uniontown High School Auditorium to hear Dr. Stephen S. Wise of New York deliver an inspirational address on "My Vision of America". The auditorium and balcony were filled to capacity. Connellsville being represented by a large delegation.

In his remarks concerning his subject Dr. Wise asked whether man understood the meaning of "vision". He declared that obviously they did not, as that particular thing is lacking in American life today and unless vision is put into effect in more ways than one, the Nation will never emerge from the most alarming present conditions. Branching into the history of the Hebrew Bible, the speaker asserted that democracy is based on the teachings of that book. He asserted that America is still an experiment and that the young Americans will not be formed by the realities of today but by visions of the future which, he stated must be gained by the present attitude of some Americans toward things as they are regarded. He stated that three things are needed in America—first, education, second, new religion, third, new Americanization.

WORK OF CHURCH IS SET FORTH AT M. E. ANNIVERSARY

Much of interest at Fifty-Year
Jubilee of Scottdale Congregation.

WAS ORGANIZED IN 1874

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, May 22.—Methodists of Scottdale yesterday began the observance of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the church here. The initial service was held at the church last evening. It was a service given over to the historical sketches dealing with the organization and its varied activities.

A. L. Porter read a history of the church, dating from its organization in 1874.

Facis regarding the Sunday school were set forth by Dr. J. P. Strickler, who for many years was its superintendent.

Mrs. C. W. Stauffer discussed the Epworth League. Several charter members were in attendance at the meeting.

The history of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society was read by Mrs. J. P. Strickler, outlining many interesting phases of its work. The children's organization, the King's Herald, was covered by Mrs. George Jarrett.

Mrs. J. W. Beutling, president of the Jubilee Circle, told of the work of this, one of the most wide-awake auxiliaries to the church. It is composed of the younger women.

Miss Evelyn Farmer dwelt upon the Queen Mother Circle, which, under the guidance of Mrs. C. A. Bloom, has "come into its own."

Mrs. J. T. Kothley gave a history of the Mothers' Jewels, the very small people of the church, who on next Saturday will hold their annual May party.

Mrs. Josiah Reynolds' report had to do with the Ladies' Aid Society, fostered at this time by Mrs. C. A. Bloom. Thought it is rich in history it has never been hinder nor done more than it is doing at the present time, she said.

Mrs. C. A. Colborn, president of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, was its spokesman. This society is very busy and each year holds an ingathering for the homes of the Methodist Episcopal denomination. These ingatherings have become so popular that they have put the Scottdale church ahead of most of the Western Pennsylvania churches.

There was special music by a quartet composed of Mrs. Porro, W. Buck, Miss Lida Barkell, Robert Harrell and Ralph Sherrick.

This evening the former pastors of the church, those who can be present, will be there.

The church was organized in Scottdale in 1874 by Rev. A. P. Leonard with a congregation of 10 members. The first place of meeting was in what is now a private residence situated on the corner of Market and Chestnut streets. From there the congregation changed its meeting place to the old public school house located in Pittsburg street. The next place of assembly was a large wagon shop situated in Pittsburg street.

In 1881 the first church building, a brick structure on the same site as that now occupied by the present building was built. This building was used by the members of the congregation until the present large stone church was erected in 1901.

The membership has grown rapidly until at the present time it has one of the largest congregations of any church in the community.

Ministors who have been in charge of the church from the time of its organization in 1874 until the present time are: Rev. A. P. Leonard, 1874-1877; Rev. D. T. Thomas, 1877-1879; Rev. D. M. Stafford, 1879-1882; Rev. H. R. Pershing, 1882-1884; Rev. A. J. Ashe, 1884-1887; Rev. John Connor, 1887-1892; Rev. George S. Holmes, 1892-1898; Rev. H. C. Baason, 1898-1899; Rev. O. H. T. Graham, 1899-1900; Rev. C. L. E. Cartwright, 1900-1905; Rev. E. S. Smith, 1905-1906; Rev. W. C. Weaver, 1906-1908; Rev. R. B. Mansell, 1908-1911; Rev. H. S. Piper, 1911-1915; Rev. G. W. Tar-bush, 1915-1917; Rev. N. L. Brown, 1917-1920; Rev. Judson Jefferys, 1920.

A picture of every pastor, with the exception of Rev. Pershing's is on exhibition in the studio of H. J. Springer on Pittsburg street during anniversary week.

Outing at Pennsville.
The Akoma Club held a dinner-dance last evening at the Harbaugh farm near Pennsville. Covers were laid for 16. The rooms were handsomely decorated in spring flowers. William MacLeod Raine

A glance at the lean, sun-bronzed face of this author of excellent western stories would convince one that he, himself, is one of those sinewy men of action of the American type which he pictures so truly and graphically.

But the truth is that he was born in London in 1871, coming to America at the age of ten years. After being graduated from Oberlin college, he became a newspaper man on several western papers and a writer for magazines. Since he became noted as a novelist he has kept his pen busy on that line of work alone for the most part western stories. His home is in Denver, Colo.

Mr. Raine's serial story, "The High-lander," begins in The Courier today, Page 11.

G. A. R. VETERANS VISIT LEISENRING, TROTTER SCHOOLS

Members of Kurts Post Attend Chapel Exercises at Former Place.

ARE GUESTS AT DINNER

Commander W. P. Clark, Colonel James J. Bernhard, W. H. Shaw, Lyman S. Strickler, Charles H. Hill and Captain Edmund Dunn of William F. Kurtz Post, Grand Army of the Republic, paid their annual visit to the schools at Leisenring No. 1 yesterday and enjoyed a very enjoyable day. The delegation was met at the West Penn walking room by R. K. Smith, superintendent of the Dunbar Township schools, and P. A. Harris, principal of the elementary school at Leisenring, who conveyed them to their automobiles to the high school.

The veterans attended the chapel exercises, at which about 400 high school students and members of the senior class of the high school elementary grades were assembled. A medley of patriotic numbers was played by the high school orchestra, followed by several songs. An oration, "Lincoln, a Man Called God," was given by Ira Christ, a member of the senior class. Superintendent Smith then introduced Commander Clark, who told the purpose of the visit of the soldiers. C. H. Hill delivered Lincoln's address at Gettysburg, after which Commander Strickler spoke on the "Value of a Good Education." Captain Dunn spoke on "Observance of the Country's Law." Contralto Show also gave an interesting talk. L. S. Strickler played a violin solo. Colonel Bernhard also took part in the program and received a great ovation.

From the high school the veterans were escorted to the elementary school, where they addressed the students. At 12 o'clock dinner was served in the H. C. Brick Auditorium, covers being laid for 21. The repast was served by Custodian Joseph Smith of the auditorium and the elementary teachers. School Directors I. H. Ball and A. C. Edwards were guests.

Little roast turkey, dressing, creamed new potatoes, pea patties, celery, olives, tomato salad, strawberry shortcake, bread, butter, mints and coffee were served. F. A. Harris was toastmaster, and toasts were given by Mrs. Grace Hill, R. K. Smith, H. L. Mason and the comrades.

The maudlin, patriotic in design, were made by the students. In the front was the following welcome to the soldiers:

"Veterans, we bid you welcome to this banquet table. Just as you felt it an honor to serve your country in the time of great need, we too, esteem it an honor to serve you in this small way."

About 1:30 o'clock the soldiers were driven by Superintendent Smith and Principal Harris to the Trotter schools, of which Harry G. Witt is principal. Twenty pupils, ranging from seven to eight years old, were selected from the third grade by Superintendent Smith to give a blackboard demonstration of rapid calculation in addition and subtraction. The Trotter school had an enrollment for the term of 403. Mrs. B. M. Shorser is now substituting for Edna Dividitis, who is ill at her home at Dickerson Run. Teachers are Edna Dividitis, Margaret Duffy, Margaret Dwyer, Margaret Gurvey, Rose Houy, Mary Burkholder, M. Robt. Pore, Veronica Bradley and Rene Cosel.

The veterans are waiting the schools at Leisenring No. 3 today.

Tibet Women Rule and Have Several Husbands

"In some of the principalities in eastern Tibet," said Dr. William Montgomery McGovern, the latest and best authority upon the only real hermit kingdom remaining on the face of the earth, "the rulers are women, and polyandry, which is practiced throughout the country, reaches its greatest heights for some of them have their harems, as it were, but with a reverse English, because the inmates are men, who are never permitted to leave the place."

The doctor visited Detroit recently to lecture on his experiences in reaching the forbidden city of Lhasa, the capital of Tibet, the forbidden country.

"Polyandry is the practice, and wives have as many husbands as they apparently want. The country, curiously, is run by these married women, and the unmarried monks, for most of the world while men join the religious order. The dominance of women has apparently not caused any perceptible lowering of the moral or social standards, but naturally there is little, if any, of the home life spirit found in occidental countries."—Jackson D. Hagg in the Detroit News.

That Ended It

Two women were discussing about ages. At last, as if to end the dispute, one of them turned away and said in a very conciliatory tone: "Let us not quarrel any more. I at least, have not the heart to do it. I never knew who my mother was. She deserted me when I was a baby, and who knows but that you may have been that heartless parent?"

PATRONIZE THOSE WHO ADVERTISE

EFFECTS OF HIGH TEMPERATURES ON THE HUMAN BODY

Heavy and Stout Men Suffer Less Discomfort Than Thin and Light.

TESTS BY MINES BUREAU

That the human body, in a state of rest and in still air, can not endure indefinitely a temperature higher than 90 degrees F. with 100 per cent relative humidity, has been determined by Department of the Interior investigators at the Pittsburgh experimental station of the Bureau of Mines, co-operating with American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers. In the course of the tests, it was noted that the heavier and stouter men, of the experimenters, when subjected to uncomfortably hot temperatures, lost more weight than the lighter and thinner men, but as a rule could endure such temperatures for a longer period and complained less of the exhaustion which followed. Loss of weight in the subjects experimented with gradually increased with an increase in atmospheric temperature. Whenever the subject drank ice water he immediately gained in weight, and in all cases the subject, within 24 hours, usually regained the entire weight lost. Subjects who drank ice water after exposure to high temperatures felt no ill effects, tending to disprove the assumption that such action develops severe cramps.

It was found that the exhaustion and weakness following subjection of human beings to a very high temperature and humidity for a short period is not so severe as subjection to a moderately high temperature and humidity for a longer period. The pulse rate, rather than the rise in body temperature, apparently determines the extent of the discomfort experienced by the subject. Subjects became very uncomfortable after the pulse rate exceeded 135 pulsations per minute, and complained of unbearable and distressing symptoms when the pulse exceeded 160 per minute. The highest pulse rate recorded was 184 per minute. Subjection to high temperatures and humidities produced no marked change in the respiratory rate.

The health, comfort, and efficiency of men engaged in the mining industry may be impaired, in some instances very seriously, by abnormal physical conditions of the mine air or by variations in its composition. This is true in some of the metal mines of the West where high temperatures with varying humidities are encountered. Physiological studies have been made by the Bureau of Mines in some of these mines showing the effects of various temperatures and humidities. As it is difficult to carry out studies on many controlled temperatures, it was thought best to make the present experiments in a laboratory and apply the results to the mining industry insofar as practicable. The experiments were part of a general co-operative study of the physiological effects of heat and humidity being conducted by the Bureau of Mines and the United States Public Health Service, co-operating with the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, at the Bureau of Mines experimental station, Pittsburgh.

The experiments were conducted in two fully-equipped chambers, insulated by cork, designed to maintain air conditions at a desired temperature and humidity. The temperature, humidity, and air motion of each room may be controlled independently of each other. The air conditions are controlled by apparatus outside of the chambers, and entirely separated from them. Instruments for observing the body and surface temperatures of the subject, also for recording the rate of respiration and of the heart pulsations, and the apparatus for heat measurement work are located in an adjoining room.

The oral temperature of each subject was registered by the one-minute clinical thermometer while the surface temperatures were recorded by means of thermocouples in contact with the body, and connected to a potentiometer in an adjacent room by means of flexible wires. Surface temperature readings were taken without the knowledge of the subjects. A permanent record of the pulse was made on a smoked drum whenever desired.

In addition to counting the rate of respiration by an observer, the rate was also recorded at intervals unknown to the subject by means of an inflated tube strapped around the chest and connected by long rubber tubing to the kymograph placed in the room adjoining the chamber. The wave lengths were traced on smoked paper, controlling the drum of the instrument.

While irrelevant to the present study, an attempt was made to determine the cause of the inflammation of the eyes of which workers in the industries are frequently complaining. On a day when eyes were normal, a small quantity of sweat, which had been collected during an experiment, was dropped in the eye. The conjunctiva almost immediately became inflamed and the eye felt sore. The sweat collected from the face soon after it was dripping from the eyes was irritating to the eye than that collected from the chest or arms. Sweat-bands were then applied to the forehead during the experiments, these preventing the sweat from falling into the eyes, and also preventing the inflammation. This proves sufficiently that sweat is the chief factor in producing the conjunctivitis which accompanies exposure to heat.

Newcastle, Pa.—"I was all run-down and everybody thought I was going into a decline. I had been ailing for a year with pains in my right side so that I could hardly stand on my feet. When I walked I felt as if something was falling. I was not able to do any work and had a nurse most of the time. She spoke to me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I gave it a fair trial. Some women think one bottle should cure them, but I did not stop at that. I took more and got better, and am able now to do my own housework. There was a time when I would complain of not feeling well, that my husband would say, 'Go to the doctor. But now he will tell me to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's, and it has always helped me. I have had druggists tell me that they don't have anything better, but they don't tell me that now, for I take no other. I have been taking the Vegetable Compound now for five years. Any woman who cares to call or write will be glad to tell her how it helped me.'—Mrs. MAUREL LIST SHERMAN, 616 Newell Ave., Newcastle, Pa. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. Emerald Oil is a powerful, yet harmless germicide and results are guaranteed. Union Drug Co.—Advertisement.

NATIONALIZATION OF COAL MINES REJECTED BY BRITISH PARLIAMENT

The British House of Commons a few days ago rejected, by a majority of 96 votes, a bill providing for the nationalization of coal mines. Although the bill had been drawn by the solicitor general it was not made an official government measure. Secretary of Mines Shinwell said that while the government did not accept responsibility for the measure, "they wholeheartedly accepted the vital principle embodied in it. In our judgment there is no solution of the problems involved in the mining industry as regards the production or distribution of coal other than is to be found in national ownership."

The bill provided compensation for the owners of collieries but not to the owners of coal lands. Control of the mines was to be vested in a mining council of twenty men, half representing the miners and half appointed by the government.

Lloyd George, who bitterly opposed the measure, declared it was "the best concrete example of the new socialism which is to be put into operation as soon as the Labor Party has a majority."

He said that under the proposed law the losses in the operation of the mines would be offset, not by reduction in wages, but out of money appropriated by Parliament, which means that the taxpayers will have to pay the deficit.

Market Value to Rule In Assessing Coal Land

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court has handed down a decision which is regarded as an important victory for owners of anthracite coal land in Schuylkill county. It has to do with the method of valuing coal-bearing property for taxation purposes, and reverses the Schuylkill County Court on this point. The county commissioners at the time of the trial assessment in 1922 engaged a local expert to place a value upon undeveloped coal reserves, and a figure was arrived at which the land owners contended was far above what their properties could be sold for.

Under the ruling of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, the only value which can be placed on any real estate for taxation purposes is market value. Scientific formulas, artificial coal deductions and "mental contemplations," the court holds, are of no weight compared with the testimony of witnesses who know market values.

Pit Boss Jailed For Being Negligent

Miss buses and foremen may be charged with manslaughter if coal miners lose their lives through failure of their superiors to prevent gas explosions, according to a decision of the Oklahoma Criminal Court of Appeals at Oklahoma City.

The opinion was delivered in affirming the conviction and sentence to one year's imprisonment of Martin Clark, a pit boss in a Lattimer county mine. Clark was on duty when an explosion killed ten men in the mine August 21, 1920. The boss was found to have been negligent in not taking proper precautions to warn the men of the presence of noxious gases in the mine.

CULBRANSEN The Registering Piano

The REGISTERING Piano

The Culbransen Registering Piano of today is the world's latest achievement in musical instruments.

It stands absolutely alone in the artistic results it produces and the ease with which they are obtained. It is played by music roll and pedals, as are other instruments of its type, but there the similarity ends.

The Culbransen registers one's exact "touch" on each note. It can be played with all the feeling, the life, the delicacy of the very finest piano music you ever listened to.

You can graduate the exact shading of each note, not just play it loudly or softly, but graduate the tones just as the most accomplished pianists do in hand-playing.

Ordinary hand-playing can no longer be compared with Culbransen-playing. Only the most artistic piano playing can be placed in the same class as correct playing of the Culbransen.

Because these are facts, we are insistent that the Culbransen be not confused with other instruments of the same type. We challenge investigation of it as an Easy-to-Play Registering Piano that registers your exact touch, that registers your time, that registers your expression.

Mail This and we will tell you on what easy terms you can buy a Culbransen.

Cokers Rally in Ninth and Are Saved From Lacing by Brooklyn Cubans; Score 9-8

Locals Hammer Ball Hard in Final Frame; Errors Aid in Their Victory.

CLASH THIS AFTERNOON

A thrilling ninth inning rally by the Connellsville Independents brought defeat to the highly touted Brooklyn Cubans Ex-Giants, yesterday afternoon at Fayette field, by a score of 9-8, in the second home game of the season. Coupling hits with the effectiveness of the Cokers managed to pull through. Grady, hurling for Giants, was wild at all stages of the game, while Picard and Carroll pitched a good steady game for the Connellsville team.

Coming to bat in the last of the ninth, the Cokers were trailing, by four runs. Picking up the "ole fighting spirit," they accepted a free ticket, and J. Smith measured the left field fence with a homer. Frey scoring before him. After Hagerty tied out, Good went first on a base on balls and walked until Belmont broomed. Carter waited for the free express and went to first. Cummings came through with a double, scoring both Good and Carter. He went third when Woods threw wild to get him. Albritton went on the mound for the Cubans, with Carroll batting. The Connellsville team unworked a wild pitch, and Cummings scampered home with the home run.

The Cokers showed a great desire to claim the ball out of the park, and struck at wild pitches. Had they waited Grady out, the score would have been decidedly larger. Although having a nice, quick breaking curve, he could not control it. He hit five batters, walked six, unworked a wild pitch and made a balk.

LEISENRING MAKES 19 RUNS, 20 HITS IN BLACK SOX GAME

VANDERBILT, May 22.—Playing their first game as the Vanderbilts, the Paul Tornado Athletic Association and the Imperial Married Nine fell yesterday before the onslaught of the Leisenring outfit by a score of 19-3, in one of the worst games of the year. The fielding of both teams was very poor. Frye held the edge in the pitching staff. Overton made his debut as a twirler for the Black Sox, and lasted until the second inning when the Leisenring aggregation garnered five runs. Anderson, who pitched against the Scottsdale Grays Monday afternoon, went in but the terrific hitting of the Leisenring team could not be stopped. The support accorded him was very poor. Exactly 55 men faced Anderson and Overton and collected 20 hits.

The Paul Tornado Athletic Association baseball team is scheduled to meet the Evanson Kameel Club this afternoon on the Dickerson Run Y. M. C. A. Grounds.

CHARLEROI PLAYS SATURDAY AFTERNOON AT SCOTSDALE PARK

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, May 22.—Charleroi makes its first appearance at Scottdale on Saturday, May 24, with the opening of a game and game series, the second to be staged at Charleroi on May 31. Last season, Charleroi boasted of the best club on the Monongahela Valley, and was the only club to defeat the Homestead Grays, in four straight games. It also beat Beaver Falls Elks, Rochester Reds and Bellevue. This year, Charleroi has strengthened considerably and has in its lineup the following: Secretary, left; W. Phillips, first; L. Phillips, middle; Davis, right; Gannon, center; Walter White, short; Stophard, 1b; Smith, 2b; Beaty, 3b; Smith, 1b; Miller, pitcher. This year the club tied Homestead Grays 5-6 in 10 innings.

NO-HIT GAME TURNED IN BY SECKINGER OF POPLAR GROVE TEAM

The Poplar Grove Klairdales yesterday evening defeated the Trump Run team at Klairdale, pitched a no-hit game. Trump Run was whitewashed, 4-0. Seckinger had eight strikeouts. Tomorrow evening the Klairdales play Davidson Night Hawks at Poplar Grove and the following evening go to Obolys.

In the Realm of Sports
Now that the sun has begun to shine again tennis enthusiasts may be able to get going once more. The game has suffered considerably because of the wet weather, the rain not letting us sufficiently to allow the grounds to dry.

Chicago went into first place in the National League yesterday. The Cubs won while Cincinnati was turned back. New York is still in third place.

Charleroi plays at Scottdale Saturday. The Klairdales have been giving the team real support and each week sees a higher class club appear at the Fayette field. Yesterday's game was a duplication of the last. There was one man on the paths ahead of him. The homer came in the ninth, and helped in the rally that won the game.

Many fans remember the day Jack Smith, catching for Scottdale, hoisted a home run over the left field fence at the Fayette field. Yesterday's game was a duplication of the last. There was one man on the paths ahead of him. The homer came in the ninth, and helped in the rally that won the game.

The Cuban Giants are rated as even a higher class club than the Homestead Grays.

Now that the Connellsville Independents have demonstrated their baseball ability and reserve power by the ninth inning victory over the Brooklyn Cubans Ex-Giants, Cokers fans feel that nothing that wins support from followers of the sport like a fighting team—one that never says die until the last man is out.

The visitors proved themselves a group of real baseball players. There were some nifty plays unworked. It was the type of baseball that fires the desire of the layman to see more games.

The game this afternoon will be between the same teams. It will be at 5 o'clock.

Captain Glass will be the big attraction in baseball circles Saturday. Trotter will go to the glass factory diamond for a second game with the home team. On Tuesday the club played to a 3-5 tie, darkness bringing an end to the clash.

Engaging in a slug-fest with New York yesterday, the Pittsburgh Pirates lost 10-5. McGraw's team, by its victory, was saved from going down a third time before the Buc onslaught.

Connellsville fans are not thinking baseball this Saturday. All tandem will be at the track and field meet of the Fayette County Interscholastic Athletic Association at the Dawson Fair Grounds. The meet has been twice postponed on account of rain and wet grounds. Coker athletes are still working faithfully for Coach Leraw and are not going to be counted out of many events this spring.

The Dunbar Colts yesterday defeated South Connellsville in a game at Dunbar, 14-4. In the third inning, trailing behind a 1-0 score, the Colts pointed in seven tallies and were never again headed. On Friday the team plays the Pennsylvania Wire Glass club of Dunbar.

Smith for the Cuban Giants robbed Roenele of a hit in the second inning yesterday, when he leaped into the air about three feet and pulled down his liner, doubling Picard on first.

With the count 3-2, Jack Smith, Coker catcher, lifted a nice outcurve.

PRINT THIS ABOUT Joint-Ease Says Druggist

"Joint-Ease is nothing like hot ointment in my store because it is a powerful remedy for all joint troubles."
"But why not improve on the thousands of suffering people who are using it?"
"Some say that it 'kneads' the joints, and others say it 'soothes' them. I don't know. I just know it's a powerful remedy for all joint troubles."
"You'll like to use Joint-Ease for the joints in your back, neck, shoulders, arms and legs. over the left field fence, just as Milton for the Cubs did in the sixth inning. Both came when one was on the bases, and they gleefully trotted around the bases, as the fielder watched the ball go over the fence.

Babe Ruth Contends Hitting Will Decide

Babe Ruth is inclined to believe that all the talk about a revival of busemanning is the talk of the penitents in the two major leagues this year is going to be won by the club that can take base hits in the old place rather than stealing second more often than the opposition.

"Speed is a desirable asset in a ball player, but not so much merely to steal bases as to take advantage of the opportunities that arise on the bases."
"With the lively ball still in use, few ball games are going to be decided by a one-run margin. Stealing second base is a one-run system."

"The pitching in both major leagues must get much tighter before base running becomes a big factor in deciding ball games."

Quicker pickup

FOURTEEN million cars on the highways! And a million and a half being added every year! Driving conditions were never what they are to-day. Making time is no longer merely a matter of speed. It's quicker pickup you need—readier response from your motor when the opportunity offers to "shoot ahead."

You simply must have a livelier, more sure-footed, more finely balanced gasoline. Put this new Atlantic in your tank. Then watch it perform! See how the spark takes hold. Step on it!—at the getaway, on the hills, or when someone is slowing up the line and your left is clear!

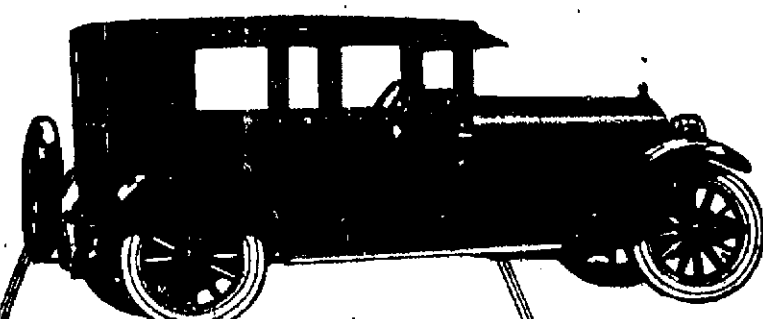

This year's Atlantic Gasoline is another big Atlantic step in keeping up with car operating conditions as they are to-day, not as they were yesterday.

MacLeod's alert eyes swept again and again the trail leading up the gulch. He did not seem to be looking for anything in particular, but his gaze was fixed on the trail as if he were waiting for something to happen. The trail was a narrow, winding path that led up the side of a steep, rocky hill. It was made of loose stones and dirt, and it seemed to lead nowhere. MacLeod's expression was one of intense concentration. He was a man of middle age, with a weathered face and a thick mustache. He was wearing a dark coat and a hat. He was standing at the entrance of the gulch, looking down the trail. The gulch was a deep, narrow ravine that had been carved into the side of the hill. It was filled with rocks and debris, and it seemed to lead down to a small stream at the bottom. MacLeod's eyes were fixed on the trail as if he were waiting for something to happen. CHAPTER I

The Campers

Inside the cabin a man was hunkering and slugging lazily. "It's a long, long way to Tipperary," he sang, and then he yawned. Outside, another whistled softly to himself while he arranged his traps. The cook, having put his biscuits in the oven, filled the doorway. He was a big, strong-set man, with a face of leather. Rolled-up sleeves showed knotted brown arms white to the wrists with flour.

"First call to dinner in the dining tent," he boomed out in a heavy bass. Two men lounging under a cottonwood beside the river showed signs of life. One of them was scarcely more than a boy, perhaps twenty, a pleasant-looking youth with a weak chin and eyes that held no steel. His companion was nearer forty than thirty, a hard-faced man whose cheeks were honey and salt little.

"Where you going to fish tonight, Crumby?" the cook asked of the man busy with the tackle. "Think I'll try up the river. Colter starts in above the Narrows and works down, mebbe. Where you going?" "Up for the Meadows. I'm after the big fellows."

The men who had been called Crumby put his rod against the side of the house and washed his hands in a tin pan resting on a stump. He was a slender young fellow with lean, muscular shoulders and the bloom of many desert suns on his cheeks and neck.

They ate in their shirt-sleeves, camp fashion, on an oilcloth scarred with the marks left by many hot dishes. Their talk was strong and crisp, after the fashion of the mining West. It could not be printed without editing, yet in that atmosphere it was without offense. There is a time for all things, even for the elemental fact of frothing on a holdup.

MacLeod's alert eyes swept again and again the trail leading up the gulch. He did not seem to be looking for anything in particular, but his gaze was fixed on the trail as if he were waiting for something to happen. be ain't. So we gave him what was coming to him." "Well, you explain that to Mr. Verinder if he sees you. He's sure on his hind legs about it." "I expect he'll get over it in time," Crumby said dryly. "Well, so-long, boys. Good fishing tonight." "Same to you," they called after him.

"Some man, Crumby," commented Steve. "He'll stand the acid," agreed Colter briefly. "What's his last name? I don't heard you lade call him anything but Crumby. I reckon that's a nickname, eh?" "Surely," answered the questioner of the camp-puncher. "His name's Kilmeny—Jack Kilmeny. His folks used to live across the water. Maybe this Honorable Alas Kilmeny and her brother are some kin of his."

"Of course I don't know about that. His dad came over here when he was a wild young colt. Got into some trouble at home, this way I heard it. Thought a ranch out here and married. His family was high moguls in England—or, maybe, in Ireland. Anyhow, they didn't like Mrs. Kilmeny from the far Double O ranch. The inauspicious case of the older man came back from the rushing river. "You know so much about it, Curly. I'll not butt in with any more information," he answered with obvious sarcasm.

Curly flushed. "I'd ought to know Jack's father and mine were friends, so's he and me." "How come you to call him, Crumby?" "That's a joke, Steve. Jack's no ordinary rip-roaring, hollering miner. He knows what's what. That's why we call him Crumby—because he's fine broad. Pua, see. Fine broad—Crumby Get it?"

"Sure I get it, kid. I ain't no Englishman. You don't need a two-by-four to pound a josh into my coconut," the rider remonstrated. Jack Kilmeny followed the pathway which wound through the woods along the bank of the river. Beyond the trees lay a clearing. At the back of this, facing the river, was a large fishing lodge built of logs and finished artistically in rustic style. It was a two-story building spread over a good deal of ground space. A wide porch ran round the front and both sides. Upon the porch was a man in an armchair and a girl seated on the top step with her head against the corner post. A voice called Kilmeny. "I say, my men."

The fisherman turned, discovered that he was the party addressed, and waited. "Come here, you!" The man in the armchair had taken the cigar from his mouth and was beckoning to him. "Meaning me?" inquired Kilmeny. "Of course I mean you. Who else could I mean?" The fisherman drew near. In his eyes sparkled a light that belied his acquiescence.

"Do you belong to the party camped below?" inquired the man in the armchair, one eyebrow fixed in the complacent frown. The guilty man confessed. "Then I want to know what the deuce you meant by kicking up such an infernal row last night. I couldn't sleep a wink for hours—not for hours, dash it. It's an outrage—a heinous outrage. What?"

The man with the monocle was angry with the self-satisfaction of his tribe. His thin hair was parted in the middle and a faint straw-colored mustache decorated his upper lip. Altogether, he might measure five feet five in his boots. The miner looked at him gravely. No faintest hint of humor came into the sea-blue eyes. They took in the dapper Britisher as if he had been a natural history specimen.

"So kindly tell them not to do it again," Dobyns Verinder ordered in conclusion. "If you please, sir," added the young woman quietly. Kilmeny's steady gaze passed for the first time to her. He saw a slight dark girl with amazingly live eyes and a lift to the pliant chin that was arresting. His hat came off promptly. "We didn't know anybody was at the lodge," he explained.

"You wouldn't, of course," she nodded, and by way of explanation: "Lady Farquhar is rather nervous. Of course we don't want to interfere with your fun, but—"

"There will be no more fireworks at night. One of the boys had a birthday and we were celebrating our enthusiasm. If we had known—" "Kindly make sure it doesn't happen again, my good fellow," cut in Verinder.

The Oakland engine is true blue because it is the natural advantage of a "Six" have been developed to a remarkable degree. There is freedom from annoying vibration, which is essential to complete closed-car satisfaction; there is extreme flexibility which makes gear changing rarely necessary; there is a surprising ability to respond to unusual demands quickly and without fuss—all of which qualities you will surely seek in selecting your next closed-car.

Then there are four-wheel brakes (you certainly should not buy a car without this proved essentially exclusive controlled control on the steering wheel, a special body finish which retains its lustre indefinitely, and a dozen other features.

Isn't it true that the problem of choosing the right car is merely a matter of getting the most and the best for your money? Examine the True Blue Oakland Six. Drive it yourself. We welcome frank comparisons.
